

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

VESPERS OF PALERMO;

A TRAGEDY.

ACT THE FIRST.

Scene I .- A Valley, with Vineyards and Cottages.

Groups of Peasants—Procida, disguised as a Pilgrim, amongst them

1 Peasant. Ay, this was wont to be a festal time In days gone by! I can remember well
The old familiar melodies that rose
At break of morn, from all our purple hills,
To welcome in the vintage. Never since
Hath music seem'd so sweet! But the light hearts
Which to those measures beat so joyously
Are tamed to stillness now. There is no voice
Of joy thro' all the land.

2 Pea. Yes! there are sounds
Of revelry within the palaces,
And the fair castles of our ancient lords,
Where now the stranger banquets. Ye may hear,
From thence the peals of song and laughter rise
At midnight's deepest hour.

E'en to the earth.

3 Pea. Alas! we sat
In happier days, so peacefully beneath
The olives and the vines our fathers rear'd,
Encircled by our children, whose quick steps
Flew by us in the dance! The time hath been
When peace was in the hamlet, wheresoe'er
The storm might gather. But this yoke of France
Falls on the peasant's neck as heavily
As on the crested chieftain's. We are bow'd

PEA. CHILD. My father, tell me when Shall the gay dance and song again resound Amidst our chesnut-woods, as in those days? Of which thou'rt wont to tell the joyous tale?

1 PEA. When there are light and reckless hearts once more

In Sicily's green vales. Alas! my boy,

Men meet not now to quaff the flowing bowl,

To hear the mirthful song, and cast aside

The weight of work-day care:—they meet, to speak

Of wrongs and sorrows, and to whisper thoughts They dare not breathe aloud.

PROCIDA. (from the back-ground.) Ay, it is well So to relieve th' o'erburden'd heart, which pants Beneath its weight of wrongs; but better far In silence to avenge them.

AN OLD PEA. What deep voice Came with that startling tone?

1 Pea. It was our guest's,

The stranger pilgrim, who hath sojourn'd here Since yester-morn. Good neighbours, mark him well: He hath a stately bearing, and an eye Whose glance looks thro' the heart. His mien accords Ill with such vestments. How he folds round him His pilgrim-cloak, e'en as it were a robe Of knightly ermine! That commanding step Should have been used in courts and camps to move. Mark him!

OLD PEA. Nay, rather, mark him not: the times Are fearful, and they teach the boldest hearts A cautious lesson. What should bring him here?

A Yourn. He spoke of vengeance!

OLD PEA. Peace! we are beset By snares on every side, and we must learn In silence and in patience to endure.

Talk not of vengeance, for the word is death.

Pro. (coming forward indignantly.)—The word is death! And what hath life for thee,
That thou shouldst cling to it thus? thou abject thing!
Whose very soul is moulded to the yoke,
And stamp'd with servitude. What! is it life,
Thus at a breeze to start, to school thy voice
Into low fearful whispers, and to cast
Pale jealous looks around thee, lost, e'en then,
Strangers should catch its echo?—Is there aught
In this so precious, that thy furrow'd cheek
Is blanch'd with terror at the passing thought
Of hazarding some few and evil days,
Which drag thus poorly on?

Some of the Peasants.

Away, away! Leave us, for there is danger in thy presence. Pro. Why, what is danger?—Are there deeper ills-Than those we bear thus calmly? Ye have drain'd The cup of bitterness, till nought remains To fear or shrink from—therefore, be ye strong! Power dwelleth with despair.—Why start ye thus At words which are but echoes of the thoughts Lock'd in your secret souls ?—Full well I know. There is not one amongst you, but hath nursed Some proud indignant feeling, which doth make One conflict of his life. I know thy wrongs, And thine—and thine,—but if within your breasts. There is no chord that vibrates to my voice, Then fare ye well. A Youth. (coming forward.) No, no! say on, say on! There are still free and fiery hearts e'en here, That kindle at thy words. PEAS. If that indeed. Thou hast, a hope to give us. There is hope Pro. For all who suffer with indignant thoughts Which work in silent strength, What! think ye Heaven

O'erlooks th' oppressor, if he bear awhile His crested head on high?—I tell you, no! Th' avenger will not sleep. It was an hour Of triumph to the conqueror, when our king, Our young brave Conradin, in life's fair morn, On the red scaffold died way Yet, not the less Is justice throned above; and her good time Comes rushing on in storms: that royal blood Hath lifted an accusing voice from earth, And hath been heard. The traces of the past Fade in man's heart, but ne'er doth heaven forget.

Peas. Had we but arms and leaders, we are men Who might earn vengeance yet; but wanting these, What woulds't thou have us do?

Pro. Be vigilant;

And when the signal wakes the land, arise!

The peasant's arm is strong, and there shall be
A rich and noble harvest. Fare ye well. [Exit Procida.]

1 Peas. This man should be a prophet: how he seem'd

To read our hearts with his dark searching glance. And aspect of command! And yet his garb. Is mean as ours.

2 Peas. Speak low; I know him well.

At first his voice disturb'd me like a dream

Of other days; but I remember now

His form, seen oft when in my youth I served

Beneath the banners of our kings. 'Tis he

Who hath been exiled and proscribed so long, the rold

The Count di Procida.

PEAS. And is this he? Then heaven protect him? for around his steps also to Will many shares be set.

1 Peas. He comes not thus the resonant TO But with some mighty purposet, doubt it hot with TO Perchance to bring us freedom! He is one, they mo Whose faith, thro' many a trial, thath been proved!

True to our native princes. But away!

The noon-tide heat is past, and from the seas

Light gales are wandering thro the vineyards; now

We may resume our toil.

Exeunt Peasants.

Scene II.—The Terrace of a Castle.

Eribert. Vittoria.

VITTORIA. Have I not told thee, that I bear a heart Blighted and cold?—Th' affections of my youth Lie slumbering in the grave; their fount is closed, And all the soft and playful tenderness Which hath its home in woman's breast, ere yet Deep wrongs have sear'd it; all is fled from mine. Urge me no more.

ERIBERT. O lady! doth the flower
That sleeps entomb'd thro' the long wintry storms
Unfold its beauty to the breath of spring;
And shall not woman's heart, from chill despair,
Wake at love's voice?

Vir. Love!—make love's name thy spell,
And I am strong!—the very word calls up
From the dark past, thoughts, feelings, powers, array'd
In arms against thee!—Know'st thou whom I lov'd,
While my soul's dwelling place was still on earth?
One who was born for empire, and endow'd
With such high gifts of princely majesty,
As bow'd all hearts before him!—Was he not

Brave, royal, beautiful?—And such he died;

He died!—hast thou forgotten?—And thou'rt here,
Thou meet'st my glance with eyes which coldly look'd,
—Coldly!—nay, rather with triumphant gaze,
Upon his murder!—Desolate as I am,
Yet in the mien of thine affianced bride,
Oh, my lost Conradin! there should be still
Somewhat of loftiness, which might o'erawe
The hearts of thine assassins.

Enr. Haughty dame!

If thy proud heart to tenderness be closed,
Know, danger is around thee: thou hast foes
That seek thy ruin, and my power alone
Can shield thee from their arts.

Vir. Provençal, tell
Thy tale of danger to some happy heart,
Which hath its little world of loved ones round,
For whom to tremble; and its tranquil joys
That make earth, Paradise. I stand alone;
—They that are blest may fear.

Ent.

Who ne'er commands in vain?—proud lady, bend
Thy spirit to thy fate; for know that he,
Whose car of triumph in its earthquake path
O'er the bow'd neck of prostrate Sicily,
Hath borne him to dominion; he, my king,
Charles of Anjou, decrees thy hand the boon
My deeds have well deserved; and who hath power
Against his mandates?

Vir. Viceroy, tell thy lord, That e'en where chains lie heaviest on the land, Souls may not all be fetter'd. Oft, ere now, Conquerors have rock'd the earth, yet fail'd to tame Unto their purposes, that restless fire. Inhabiting man's breast.—A spark bursts forth, And so they perish!—'tis the fate of those Who sport with lightning—and it may be his: -Tell him I fear him not, and thus am free. Err. 'Tis well. Then nerve that lofty heart to bear The wrath which is not powerless. Yet again Bethink thee, lady !- Love may change-hath changed To vigilant hatred oft, whose sleepless eye Still finds what most it seeks for. Fare thee well. —Look to it yet!—To-morrow I return. Exit Exibert. Vit. To-morrow !--Some ere now have slept, and dreamt Of morrows which ne'er dawn'd-or ne'er for them; So silently, their deep and still repose Hath melted into death!—Are there not haling out if In nature's boundless realm, to pour out sleep and the Like this, on me?-Yet should my spirit still Endure its earthly bonds, till it could bear To his a glorious tale of his own isle, Free and avenged, Thouse should'st be now at ring rat ) travel & i was site In wrath, my mative Etna! who dost lift was a Thy spiry pillar of dark smoke so high. (Procula enters disgussed)
Ha! who art thou;
Unbidden guest, that with so mute a step
Dost steal upon me?
Pro. One, o'er whom hath pass'd
All that can change man's aspect !Yet not long
Shalt thou find safety in forgetfulness.
—I am he, to breathe whose name is perilous,
Unless thy wealth could bribe the winds to silence.
-Know'st thou this, lady?- (He shows a ring.
VIT. Righteous Heaven! the pledge
Amidst his people from the scaffold thrown
By him who perish'd, and whose kingly blood
Een yet is unatoned.—My heart beats high—
Dh, welcome, welcome! thou art Procida,
Th' Avenger, the Deliverer!
Pro. Call me so
When my great task is done. Yet who can tell
If the return'd be welcome?—Many a heart
Is changed since last we met.
VIT. Why dost thou gaze,
With such a still and solemn earnestness,
Upon my alter'd mien?
Prio. That I may read
If to the widow'd love of Conradin,
Or the proud Eribert's triumphant bride,
I now entrust my faté.
Vir. Thou, Procida!
That thou shouldst wrong me thus!-Prolong thy gaze
Till it hath found an answer souted co.a. garrolip and

Pro. Tis enough.

I find it in thy cheek, whose rapid change
Is from death's hue to fever's; in the wild
Unsettled brightness of thy proud dark eye,
And in thy wasted form. Ay, 'tis a deep
And solemn joy, thus in thy looks to trace,
Instead of youth's gay bloom, the characters
Of noble suffering;—on thy brow the same
Commanding spirit holds its native state
Which could not stoop to vileness. Yet the

Of Fame hath told afar that thou shouldst wed This tyrant, Eribert.

Vir. And told it not
A tale of insolent love repell'd with scorn,
Of stern commands and fearful menaces
Met with indignant courage?—Procida!
It was but now that haughtily I braved
His sovereign's mandate, which decrees my hand,
With its fair appanage of wide domains
And wealthy vassals, a most fitting boon,
To recompense his crimes.—I smiled—ay, smiled—
In proud security! for the high of heart
Have still a pathway to escape disgrace,
Tho' it be dark and lone.

Pro. Thou shalt not need
To tread its shadowy mazes. Trust my words:
I tell thee, that a spirit is abroad,
Which will not slumber till its path be traced
By deeds of fearful fame. Vittoria, live!

It is most meet that thou shouldst live, to see The mighty expiation; for thy heart (Forgive me that I wrong'd its faith) hath nursed 1 A high, majestic grief, whose seal is set Deep on thy marble brow. VIT. Then thou canst tell. By gazing on the wither'd rose, that there Time, or the blight, hath work'd !--Ay, this is in Thy vision's scope: but oh! the things unseen, Untold, undreamt of, which like shadows pass Hourly o'er that mysterious world, a mind To ruin struck by grief!—Yet doth my soul, Far, midst its darkness, nurse one soaring hope. Wherein is bright vitality.—'Tis to see His blood avenged, and his fair heritage, My beautiful native land, in glory risen, Like a warrior from his slumbers! Pro. Hear'st thou not. With what a deep and ominous moan, the voice Of our great mountain swells?—There will be soon A fearful burst !-- Vittoria! brood no more In silence o'er thy sorrows, but go forth Amidst thy vassals, (yet be secret still) And let thy breath give nurture to the spark would Thou it find already kindled. I move on In shadow, yet awakening in my path That which shall startle nations. Fare thee well: VIT. When shall we meet again Are we not those in the second of the first of the first

Whom most he loved on earth, and think'st thou not That love e'en yet shall bring his spirit near While thus we hold communion?

Pro. Yes, I feel
Its breathing influence whilst I look on thee,
Who wert its light in life. Yet will we not
Make womanish tears our offering on his tomb;
He shall have nobler tribute!—I must hence,
But thou shalt soon hear more. Await the time.

Exeunt separately.

Scene III .- The Sea Shore.

Raimond di Procida. Constance.

Constance. There is a shadow far within your eye, Which hath of late been deepening. You were wont Upon the clearness of your open brow
To wear a brighter spirit, shedding round
Joy, like our southern sun. It is not well,
If some dark thought be gathering o'er your soul,
To hide it from affection. Why is this.
My Raimond, why is this?

Rathend. Oh! from the dreams
Of youth, sweet Constance, hath not manhood still
A wild and storing wakening?—They depart,
Light after light, our glorious visions fade,
The vaguely beautiful! till earth, unveil'd
Lies pale around; and life's realities
Press on the soul, from its unfathom'd depth

Rousing the fiery feelings, and proud thoughts,
In all their fearful strength!—Tis ever thus,
And doubly so with me; for I awoke
With high aspirings, making it a curse
To breathe where noble minds are bow'd, as here.
—To breath!—it is not breath!
Con. I know thy grief.
—And is't not mine?—for those devoted men.
Doom'd with their life to expiate some wild word,
Born of the social hour. Oh! I have knelt,
E'en at my brother's feet, with fruitless tears,
Imploring him to spare. His heart is shut
Against my voice; yet will I not forsake
The cause of mercy.
RAI. Waste not thou thy prayers,
Oh, gentle love, for them. There's little need
For Pity, tho' the galling chain be worn
By some few slaves the less. Let them depart!
There is a world beyond th' oppressor's reach, the year
And thither lies their way.
Con. Alas! I see mont in obid o'T
That some new wrong hath pierced you to the soul. vM
RAI. Pardon, beloved Constance, if my words, A
From feelings hourly stung, have caught, perchance, 10
A tone of bitterness Oh .! when thing eyes, no bliw A
With their sweet eloquent thoughtfulnessi are ford delaid
Thus tenderly on mine I should forget and vigures of
All else in their soft beams; and yet I came all soil
Press on the soul, from it, per them of the soul from

Con. What? What wouldst thou say 1 0 speak!---

Thou wouldst not leave me!

RAI. I have cast a cloud,
The shadow of dark thoughts and ruin'd fortunes,
O'er thy bright spirit. Haply, were I gone,
Thou wouldst resume thyself, and dwell once more
In the clear sunny light of youth and joy,
E'en as before we met—before we loved!

Con. This is but mockery.—Well thou know'st thy love

Hath given me nobler being; made my heart
A home for all the deep sublimities
Of strong affection; and I would not change
Th' exalted life I draw from that pure source,
With all its checquer'd hues of hope and fear,
Ev'n for the brightest calm. Thou most unkind?
Have I deserved this?

A love less fatal to thy peace than mine.

Think not 'tis mockery!—But I cannot rest
To be the scorn'd and trampled thing I am
In this degraded land. Its very skies,
That smile as if but festivals were held
Beneath their cloudless azure, weigh me down
With a dull sense of bondage, and I pine
For freedom's charter'd air. I would go forth
To seek my noble father; he hath been
Too long a lonely exile, and his name

Seems fading in the dim obscurity.
Which gathers round my fortunes.

Con. Must we part?

And is it come to this?—Oh! I have still

Deem'd it enough of joy with thee to share

E'en grief itself—and now—but this is vain;

Alas! too deep, too fond, is woman's love,

Too full of hope, she casts on troubled waves

The treasures of her soul!

RAI. Oh, speak not thus!

Thy gentle and desponding tones fall cold
Upon my inmost heart.—I leave thee but
To be more worthy of a love like thine.

For I have dreams of fame!—A few short years,
And we may yet be blest.

Con. A few short years!

Less time may well suffice for death and fate

To work all change on earth!—To break the ties

Which early love had form'd; and to bow down

Th' elastic spirit, and to blight each flower

Strewn in life's crowded path!—But be it so?

Be it enough to know that happiness

Meets thee on other shores.

Thou shalt be with my soul!—Thy soft low voice
Shall rise upon remembrance, like a strain
Of music heard in boyhood, bringing back
Life's morning freshness.—Oh! that there should be Things, which we love with such deep tenderness, Though that love, to learn how much of woe

One, whose life Pao.

Hath been a troubled stream, and made its way Through rocks and darkness, and a thousand storms, With still a mighty aim.—But now the shades Of eve are gathering round me, and I come To this, my native land, that I may rest Reneath its vines in peace.

Seek'st thou for peace? RAT. This is no land of peace; unless that deep And voiceless terror, which doth freeze men's thoughts Back to their source, and mantle its pale mien With a dull hollow semblance of repose, May so be call'd.

Pro. There are such calms full oft Preceding earthquakes. But I have not been well So vainly schooled by fortune, and impred To shape my course on peril's dizzy brink, where IT That it should isk my spirit to put on the second of Such guise of hush'd submissiveness as bestom and May suit the troubled aspect of the times.

RAI. Why, then thou art welcome, stranger! to the land

By which the serpent wins his spell-bound prey?

It is because I will not clothe myself

In a vile garb of coward semblances,

That now, e'en now, I struggle with my heart,

To bid what most I love a long farewell,

And seek my country on some distant shore,

Where such things are unknown!

Pro. (exidingly.) Why, this is joy!

After long conflict with the doubts and fears,
And the poor subtleties of meaner minds,
To meet a spirit, whose bold elastic wing

Eribert. Constance.

Constance. Will you not hear me?—Oh! that they who need

Hourly forgiveness, they who do but live, While Mercy's voice, beyond th' eternal stars, Wins the great Judge to listen, should be thus, In their vain exercise of pageant power, Hard and relentless!—Gentle brother, yet, 'T is in your choice to imitate that heaven Whose noblest joy is pardon.

ERIBERT. T is too late.

You have a soft and moving voice, which pleads
With eloquent melody—but they must die.

Con. What, die!—for words?—for breath, which leaves no trace

To sully the pure air, wherewith it blends,
And is, being utter'd, gone?—Why, 't were enough
For such a venial fault, to be deprived
One little day of man's free heritage,
Heaven's warm and sunny light!—Oh! if you deem
That evil harbours in their souls, at least

Delay the stroker, till guilt, made manifest,
Shall bid stern Justice wake.

Thro' their high arches: but when powerful night
Comes, with her cloudy phantoms, and her pale
Uncertain moonbeams, and the hollow sounds
Of her mysterious winds; their aspect then

Constance. There was im when my thoughts wander'd not

Beyond these fairy scenes; when, but to catch
The languid fragrance of the southern breeze
From the rich-flowering citrons, or to rest,

Oncoming of some wild legend, in the shade
Of the dark laurel foliage, was enough
Of happiness,—How have these calm delights
Fled from before one passion, as the dews,
The delicate gems of morning, are exhaled
By the great sun!

Scene III.—Hall of a Public Building.

Procida, Montalba, Guido, and others, seated as on a Tribunal.

Procida. The morn lower'd darkly, but the sum hath now,

With fierce and angry splendour, thro' the clouds Burst forth, as if impatient to behold This, our high triumph.—Lead the prisoner in.

(Raimond is brought in fettered and guarded)

Why, what a bright and fearless brow is here!

—Is this man guilty?—Look on him, Montalba!

Montalba. Be firm. Should justice falter at a look?

Pro. No, thou say'st well. Her eyes are filetted,

Or should be so. Thou, that dost call thyself—
But no! I will not breathe a traitor's hame—
Speak! thou art arraign'd of treason.

RAIMOND. I arraign

You, before whem I stand, of darker guilt,
In the bright face of heaven; and your own hearts
Give echo to the charge. Your very looks
Have ta'en the stamp of crime, and seem to shrink,
With a perturb'd and haggard wildness, back
From the too-searching light.—Why, what hadn

This change on noble brows?—There is a voice,
With a deep answer, rising from the blood
Your hands have coldly shed!—Ye are of those
From whom just men recoil, with curdling veins,
All thrill'd by life's abhorrent consciousness,
And sensitive feeling of a murderer's presence.
—Away! come down from your tribunal-seat,
Put off your robes of state, and let your mien
Be pale and humbled; for ye bear about you
That which repugnant earth doth sicken at,
More than the pestilence.—That I should live

RAY. Death has no pang

More keen than this.—Oh! wherefore art thou here?

I could have died so calmly, deeming thee

Saved, and at peace.

Con. At peace!—And thou hast thought Thus poorly of my love!—But woman's breast Hath strength to suffer too.—Thy father sits On this tribunal; Raimond, which is he?

RAI. My father!—who hath lull'd thy gentle heart With that false hope?—Beloved! gaze around—See, if thine eye can trace a father's soul In the dark looks bent on us.

Con. (After earnestly examining the countenances of the judges, falls at the feet of Procida.)

But she was noble!—Traitors stand alone,

Loosed from all ties.—Why should I trifle thus?

Unto death.

Why should she live when all her race have perish'd?

Con. (sinking into the arms of Raimond.)

Raimond, farewell!—Oh! when thy star hath risen

To its bright noon, forget not, best beloved.

I died for thee!

RAI. High heaven! thou seest these things; And yet endur'st them!—Shalt thou die for me, Purest and loveliest being?—but our fate

Pro. Bear her hence, I say!
Why must my soul be torn?

(Anselmo enters, holding a Crucifix.)

Anselmo. Now, by this sign
Of heaven's prevailing love, ye shall not harm
One ringlet of her head.—How! is there not Enough of blood upon your burthen'd souls?
Will not the visions of your midnight couch
Be wild and dark enough, but ye must heap
Crime upon crime?—Be ye content:—your dreams.
Your councils, and your banquettings, will yet
Be haunted by the voice which doth not sleep,
E'en tho' this maid be spared!—Constance, look up.
Thou shalt not die.

RAY. Oh! death e'en now hath veil'd The light of her soft beauty.—Wake, my love; Wake at my voice!

And let her live, but never meet my sight.

Begone : My heart will burst.

Yet must we part.—So love is crush'd on earth!

But there are brighter worlds!—Farewell, farewell!

Raimond sleeping. Procida enters.

PROCIDA. (gazing upon him samesthy.) Can he then sleep?—Th' o'ershadowing night hath wrapt Earth, at her stated hours—the stars have set Their burning watch; and all things hold their course Of wakefulness and rest; yet hath not sleep Sat on mine eyelids since—but this avails not! -And thus he slumbers !-- "Why, this mien doth seem " As if its soul were but one lofty thought "Of an immortal destiny!" + his brow and a ser T Is calin as waves whereon the midnight heavens Are imaged silently. -- Wake, Raimond, wake! Then wherefore ?- and upon thy lefty brew Why burns the troubled flush? Pro. Perchance 'tis shame.

Yes! it may well be shame!—for I have striven
With nature's feebleness, and been o'erpower'd.
-Howe'er it be, 'tis not for thee to gaze,
Noting it thus. Rise, let me loose thy chains,
Arise, and follow me; but let thy step
Fall without sound on earth: I have prepared
The means for thy escape.
RAI. What! thou! the austere,
The inflexible Procida! hast thou done this,
Deeming me guilty still?
Pro. Upbraid me.not?
It is even so. There have been nobler deeds.
By Roman fathers done,—but I am weak.
Therefore, again I say, arise! and haste,
For the night wanes. Thy fugitive course must be it.
To realms beyond the deep; so let us part and the start
In silence, and for ever.
RAI. Let him fly
Who holds no deep asylum in his breast, which is
Wherein to shelter from the scoffs of men!

Pro. Thy hopes are closed r
And what were they to mine?—Thou wilt not fly!
Why, let all traitors flock to thee, and learn
How proudly guilt can talk!—Let fathers rear
Their offspring henceforth, as the free wild birds
Foster their young; when these can mount alone,
Dissolving nature's bonds—why should it not
Be so with us?

What high prerogatives belong to death.

Scene VII.—Garden of a Concept.

20- Landing Date Hard

Raimond is led in wounded, leaning on Attendants.

RAIMOND. Bear me to no dull couch, but let me die

In the bright face of nature !- Lift my helm, That I may look on heaven.

1 ATT. (to 2 ATT.) Lay him to rest On this green sunny bank, and I will call Some holy sister to his aid; but thou Return unto the field, for high-born men There need the peasant's aid.

(to Raimond) Here gentler hands

Shall tend thee, warrior; for in these retreats They dwell, whose vows devote them to the care Of all that suffer. May'st thou live to bless them!

Exit 1 Att.

RAI. Thus have I wish'd to die! hey freed me, when the toe

My father bless'd th' unknown who rescued him (Bless d him, alas! because unknown!) and Guido, Beside me bravely struggling, call'd aloud, "Noble Sicilian, on '" Oh! had they deem'd

'Twas I who led that rescue, they had spurn'd Mine aid, tho' 'twas deliverance; and their looks Had fallen, like blights, upon me.—There is one, Whose eye ne'er turn'd on mine, but its blue light Grew softer, trembling thro' the dewy mist Raised by deep tenderness!-Oh might the soul Set in that exempline on me ere I perish! ... -Is't not her voice?

Constance enters, speaking to a Nun, who turns into another path.

Constance. Oh! happy they, kind sister, Whom thus ye tend; for it is theirs to fall With brave men side by side, when the roused heart. Beats proudly to the last !—There are high souls Whose hope was such a death, and 'tis denied! (She approaches Raimond.) Young warrior, is there aught-thou here, my Raimond!

Thou here and thus! Oh! is this joy or woe?

RAI. Joy, be it joy, my own, my blessed love, E'en on the grave's dim verge!—yes! it is joy! My Constance! victors have been crown'd, ere now, With the green shining laurel, when their brows Wore death's own impress—and it may be thus E'en yet, with me!—They freed me, when the foe Had half prevail'd, and I have proudly earn'd With my heart's dearest blood, the meed to die Within thine arms. The problem of the control of th

These wounds may yet be closed.

(She attempts to bind his wounds.)

Look on me, love!

Why, there is more than life in thy glad mien, 'T is full of hope! and from thy kindled eye Breaks e'en unwonted light, whose ardent ray Seems born to be immortal!

RAI. 'T is e'en so!

The parting soul doth gather all her fires
Around her; all her glorious hopes, and dreams,
And burning aspirations, to illume
The shadowy dimness of th' untrodden path
Which lies before her; and, encircled thus,
Awhile she sits in dying eyes, and thence
Sends forth her bright farewell. Thy gentle cares
Are vain, and yet I bless them.

Con. Say, not vain;

The dying look not thus. We shall not part!

RAI. I have seen death ere now, and known him wear

Full many a changeful aspect.

Con. Oh! but none

Radiant as thine, my warrior!—Thou wilt live! Look round thee!—all is sunshine—is not this A smiling world?

RAI. Ay, gentlest love, a world
Of joyous beauty and magnificence,
Almost too fair to leave!—Yet must we tame
Our ardent hearts to this!—Oh, weep thou not!

There is no home for liberty, or love,
Beneath these festal skies!—Be not deceived;
My way lies far beyond!—I shall be soon
That viewless thing which, with its mortal weeds
Casting off meaner passions, yet, we trust,
Forgets not how to love!

Con. And must this be? Heaven, thou art merciful!—Oh! bid our souls Depart together!

RAI. Constance! there is strength
Within thy gentle heart, which hath been proved
Nobly, for me:—Arouse it once again!
Thy grief unmans me—and I fain would meet
That which approaches, as a brave man yields
With proud submission to a mightier foe.

—It is upon me now!

Con.

I will be calm.

Let thy head rest upon my bosom, Raimond,
And I will so suppress its quick deep solss.

They shall but rock thee to thy rest. There is
A world, (ay, let us seek it!) where no blight
Falls on the beautiful rose of youth, and there
I shall be with thee soon!

Procida and Anselmo enter. Procida on seeing Raimond starts back.

Anselmo. Lift up thy head,
Brave youth, exultingly! for lo! thine hour
Of glory comes!—Oh! doth it come too late?
E'en now the false Alberti hath confess'd

That guilty plot, for which thy life was doom't A

To be th' atonement.

RAI. "Tis enough! Rejoice, WO Rejoice, my Constance! for I leave a name of the O'er which thou may st weep proudly! (He sinks back.

Fold me yet closer, for an iey dart is the last the Hath touch'd my veins a constant is the last the l

Con. And must thou leave me, Raimond? Alas! thine eye grows dim—its wandering glance. Is full of dreams.

RAI. Haste, haste, and tell my father to accoroff W I was no traitor!

PROCIDA. (rushing forward.) To that father's heart Return, forgiving all thy wrongs, return 15 9207 od T Speak to me, Raimond!—Thou wert ever kind, And brave, and gentle! Say that all the past of Shall be forgiven! That word from none but thee of a My lips e'er ask'd.—Speak to me once my boy, My pride, my hope!—And is it with thee thus?

Look on me yet!—Oh! must this woe be borne?

RAI. Off with this weight of chains! it is not meet. For a crown'd conqueror!—Hark, the trumpet's voice!

(A sound of triumphant music is heard, gradually approaching.

Is 't not a thrilling call?—What drowsy spell
Benumbs me thus?—Hence! I am free again!
Now swell your festal strains, the field is won!
Sing me to glorious dreams. (He dies.

Ans. The strife is past.

There fled a noble spirit!

Con. Hush! he sleeps-

Disturb him not!

Ans. Alas I this is no sleep

From which the eye doth radiantly unclose:

Bow down thy soul, for earthly hope is o'er!

(The music continues approaching. Guido enters, with Citizens and Soldiers.

Guido. The shrines are deck'd, the festive torches blaze—

Where is our brave deliverer?—We are come To crown Palermo's victor!

Ans. Ye come late.

The voice of human praise doth send no echo
Into the world of spirits. (The music ceases.

Pro. (after a pause.) Is this dust

I look on—Raimond!—'tis but sleep—a smile
On his pale cheek sits proudly. Raimond, wake!
Oh, Gedd and this was his triumphant day!
My son, my injured son!

Con. (starting.) Art thou his father?

I know thee now.—Hence! with thy dark stern eye, And thy cold heart!—Thou canst not wake him now!

Away! he will not answer but to me,

For none like me hath loved him! He is mine! Ye shall not rend him from me.

Pro. Oh! he knew

Thy love, poor maid!—Shrink from me now no more! He knew thy heart—but who shall tell him now The depth, th' intenseness, and the agony,
Of my suppress'd affection?—I have learn'd
All his high worth in time—to deck his grave!
Is there not power in the strong spirit's woe
To force an answer from the viewless world
Of the departed?—Raimond!—Speak! forgive!
Raimond! my victor, my deliverer, hear!
Why, what a world is this!—Truth ever bursts
On the dark soul too late: And glory crowns
Th' unconscious dead! And an hour comes to break
The mightiest hearts!—My son! my son! is this
A day of triumph?—Ay, for thee alone!

(He throws himself upon the body of Raimond.

[Curtain falls.
